State ProEd holds business meeting

The NYFB State Promotion & Education Committee met on Dec. 8 during State Annual Meeting to finalize some plans, strategize a new campaign and recognize the retiring representative for District 2. The committee also welcomed the soon-to-be-confirmed new representatives Phyllis Couture (District 1) and Jenny Lundberg (District 2).

Committee Chairwoman Ann Peck presented retiring representative Pat LaPoint with a certificate of recognition for all the work she has done during her term on the committee. Pat will be missed, but will still remain active on a local level and as a tremendous resource for the committee.

A large segment of the meeting was dedicated to a new consumer education project, "I Am Agriculture." A subcommittee, chaired by Jennifer Jennings, will be working on a strategy and timeline to initiate and carry out the project. It will be bringing a clear, concise and focused campaign back to the full State ProEd Committee in March of 2010. From a long list of messages, the most effective were selected as a baseline for the project, which will include consumer information printed on product packaging plus supermarket flyers and in-store information.

Other business included scholarship application distribution for judging and a committee appointed to cover details for Empire Farm Days. Each district will be now be showcasing their promotion and education success stories at EFD: even districts in even years, odd districts in odd years. Additional committee selections for the Feed the Hungry Program and Consumer Education were also appointed by Chair Ann Peck.

and animals through a variety of programs" Boozer said.

EQIP is a comprehensive program that helps agricultural producers to implement practices that reduce soil erosion, improve water quality, enhance grazing management, manure management, wildlife habitat management, and more. Assistance can be in the form of engineered structures, such as manure handling facilities, and conservation field practices such as grassed waterways. Additionally, EQIP includes incentive payments for adopting new management techniques that achieve greater environmental benefits.

This year producers will be able to apply for eligible practices under several EQIP Focus Areas including: Livestock Waste, Cropland, and Grazing. Private forestland owners will also have the opportunity to apply for practices that improve the health and productivity of their woodlands under the EQIP Forest Management Initiative.

The Chesapeake Bay Watershed Initiative provides assistance to producers who want to implement conservation measures that minimize excess nutrients and sediments in order to restore, preserve, and protect the Chesapeake Bay. In New York, the CBWI program offers financial and technical assistance to producers in priority areas of the Upper Susquehanna Watershed for the implementation of conservation practices for livestock waste, cropland and grazing land resource concerns.

The Agricultural Management Assistance Program in New York will focus on practices that improve irrigation efficiency. One of the primary goals of AMA is to assist agricultural producers in mitigating risk through production diversification or installation of conservation practices.

In New York, WHIP will have two focuses. The first is to improve habitat for at-risk shrub-dwelling bird species. The second focus area is for establishing and enhancing grassland habitat for declining bird species, pollinators and other grassland wildlife species. WHIP shrubland wildlife habitat applications must be submitted by Jan. 22, 2010. WHIP grassland habitat applications will be accepted on a continuous basis, and a deadline for 2010 batching and ranking will be announced at a later date.

Applications for EQIP, CBWI, WHIP, and AMA are competitive and are ranked based on national, state, and locally identified resource priorities and their overall benefit to the environment. Interested landowners can apply for all programs at their local USDA-NRCS office. For Sign-up details or additional conservation program information contact your local USDA NRCS office or visit <http://www.ny.nrcs.usda.gov/programs/>
