

Ag Month Kick-Off Scheduled for March 1st!

Sandie Prokop, Education Specialist

Agriculture is intertwined with our history, heritage, and values, and remains an important part of our culture today. That's why the NYFB Promotion & Education Committee has created an annual tradition every March to celebrate spring and agriculture with Ag Month events. In many states March is National Ag Month, and it is celebrated to recognize the entire food and agriculture industry. Since 1973, NY AG Day has provided the perfect opportunity for all of us to better appreciate agriculture's breadth and beauty. Now we want to continue to extend that celebration to the entire month!

New York Farm Bureau invites you to join us at New York's Second Annual "Agriculture Month Kickoff" Brunch. New York cuisine will be served at Bailiwick Market & Café in Elbridge at 10 a.m.

Numerous Central New York leaders, both in and out of agriculture and local media have been invited to join in our celebration as well to learn more about agriculture's impact on New York State. Commissioner Ball and other dignitaries will speak on the impact, diversity, and changes in farming. Some special recognition of outstanding dedication to agriculture is also planned. We will also be unveiling the special Joint-Assembly resolution.
