Large or small, all these businesses have a need for individuals who can bring their expertise and passion. Whether that be driving a milk truck, monitoring delicate PH, or fixing a multi-million-dollar piece of machinery when a sensor is sounding.

I was proud to be able to share Hamilton’s outstanding agricultural program with the group. Not only are our students exposed to the world of agriculture, they are provided hands-on learning opportunities and develop various life skills. Proudly, we are one of a handful of districts in the state who can utilize our in-house agricultural program as a pathway towards graduation. The message remains the same to students, follow your passion in life, but don’t be surprised if that passion brings you to the world of agriculture.

Of Continued Importance:

These items are monitored for development that either present opportunities or need for increased planning, collaboration and action.

Hemp Production

Ensure flexibility for hemp producers and researchers under USDA’s Interim Final Rule including testing procedures, THC levels, sampling requirements, and disposal.

Infrastructure

Work for greater investment in rural and agricultural infrastructure including broadband access, agricultural research, rural roads and bridges, and inland waterway locks and dams, and seaports.

Truth in Food Labeling

Monitor rules and practices dealing with labeling of food and agricultural products, including milk and milk substitutes, cell-based products and foods containing ingredients that are products of biotechnology.

National Organic Standards

Ensure enforcement of organic standards including those related to livestock.

Taxes

Continue to work on and promote tax policies that benefit farmers.

Rural Life:

Achieve policies that address rural mental health challenges, reduce opioid addiction, promote rural resilience and assist rural economies.

Right to Repair

Allow farmers and independent repair technicians the ability to access information, parts, and tools for farm equipment repairs.

A digital copy of a National Priority Issues booklet containing these items will be available at NYFB’s website: <https://www.nyfb.org/advocacy/legislative-affairs>.

skill, effort and responsibility and performed under similar working conditions.” The new law requires equal pay for “substantially similar work, when viewed as a composite of skill, effort, and responsibility and performed under similar working conditions.”

These new amendments took effect on Oct. 8, 2019. HR managers should review payroll, benefits and compensation programs to ensure employees performing substantially similar work are equally compensated.

Family Medical Leave Act (FMLA)

In an opinion letter issued

March 14, 2019, the USDOL concluded that an employer may not delay the designation of FMLA qualifying leave. When an employer determines that leave is for an FMLA-qualifying reason, the leave is protected, and counts toward the FMLA entitlement. (Previously, the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals held that workers have the right to defer FMLA leave and utilize other paid time off instead.)

Fair

The State Fair has agreed to work on a case-by-case basis to resolve concession routing concerns and multiple fairs have worked out “reasonable resolutions” with their vendors, carnival operators and other individuals, according to Jason Lawrence, the President of NYSAAF, in a public letter.

“As we progress, we will continue to work together so that our State and County Fairs are successful agricultural events,” said Lawrence.

The fair is also working with potential conflicts and challenges with other organizations and vendors who participate in the State Fair. As far as young people and competitors are concerned, Waffner says the agricultural competitions will continue during the same 13-day window that people are used to.

“We will have animals represented for all of the 18 days. They may not be part of the competition, but there will be an education component, but for the most part, the competitions and 4-H kids will run on the same schedule as they have been for years now,” said Waffner.

New York State have invested $120 million into the Fairgrounds during the Cuomo administration and Waffner says the Governor keeps challenging the fair to capitalize on the investment and to increase attendance with agriculture remaining a central focus.

“It really comes down to the heart of the fair which is agriculture and the competitions and all those things. We keep looking for ways to increase the number of competitions and relevancy of those things to modern day life,” said Waffner.
