creation of greater market access for agricultural products.

The Japanese Parliament is expected to approve the agreement later this fall. It may take effect as early as Jan. 1, 2020. There is no action by the U.S. Congress necessary, as this is not a full trade agreement that involves substantive changes to existing U.S. law. Farm Bureau is supportive of the trade agreement as it increases market access for U.S. agricultural products.

U.S. and China Continue Talks on Trade

On October 11, the U.S. and China announced an agreement on certain trade issues. The U.S. will not implement a tariff increase, from 25 percent to 30 percent, on $250 billion of imports from China that was scheduled for Oct. 15. China also announced the intent to increase purchases of U.S.

agricultural products.

The U.S. exported $19.5 billion of agricultural products to China in 2017.

As a result of retaliatory tariffs, agricultural exports were reduced to $9.1 billion in 2018 and had continued to decline, with a $1.3 billion drop in the first half of 2019. China recently has been buying U.S. agricultural products, with contracts reported for 4.79 million tons of soybeans for delivery in the 2019-2020 marketing year. Farm Bureau is hopeful that the U.S. and China can reach a trade agreement that results in positives for the agricultural industry.

In Other Trade News

It is hopeful that Congress will take up approval of U.S.-Mexico-Canada Agreement (USMCA) this fall. Democrats in Congress continue to work with trade officials to address concerns with the agreement including labor, environmental regulations, and drug pricing.

Stayed tuned for any call to action for Farm Bureau members to contact their representatives if the agreement is sent to Congress for approval.

The U.S. has won an arbitration award in the Boeing-Airbus case, a long-standing dispute at the World Trade Organization (WTO) between the U.S. and the European Union (EU) over government subsidies for civil aircraft production. The U.S. is now allowed to impose tariffs on up to $7.5 billion annually of EU imports.

The tariffs will be twenty-five percent for agricultural products and other goods and ten percent for large civil aircraft. The U.S. has the authority to change the tariff rates or the products affected by the tariffs. The tariffs are mostly targeted at goods from the four EU member states that supply the subsidies to Airbus that were found to be illegal. These are France, Germany, Spain and the United Kingdom.

The Office of the U.S. Trade Representative has published a list of goods from EU countries to be targeted by the tariffs, which began to be imposed on October 18, 2019. Agricultural goods subject to a twenty-five percent tariff include: Wines: France, Germany, Spain, UK; Various Cheeses: All EU Countries; Olives: Spain; Whiskies: UK. The EU is expected to retaliate with increased tariffs on U.S. exports.

Continuing Resolution Will Keep the Doors Open as Impeachment Inquiry Begins

At the end of September, Congress approved a continuing resolution that will keep the government funded through Nov. 21. However, there is still a lot of progress to be made to pass spending bills for U.S. fiscal year 2020, which began on October 1, 2019.

On Sept. 24, House Speaker Nancy Pelosi announced a formal impeachment inquiry against President Trump in regard to allegations from a whistleblower that President Trump asked the president of Ukraine to look into presidential candidate Joe Biden's relationship with Ukrainian businesses.

The impeachment proceedings and hearings are the focal point in Washington, and it remains to be seen whether time will be allotted to addresses USMCA as well as passing spending bills.
